The boys are now back from holiday and well into the old routine.

Adge had a marvellous holiday in Spain, one of the best he has ever had. Whilst there he met some old musician friends namely Diz Disley, Dick Charlesworth, and Johnnie Silvo.

Reg's camping holiday in Spain, was spoilt by the theft of his money from his tent, which led to his returning to England earlier than planned. He says he would appreciate a tin of beans if anyone has one to spare, failing this, a couple of juicy 1" steaks would be acceptable. He is extremely busy at the moment and can't be taken out for a meal so would the steaks be sent through the post. Reg also has a very good tent which he would like to sell if anyone is interested.

Tommy had two weeks in Jersey, and only two sunny days, one was when he was leaving. The rest of his holiday was spent in Scotland playing golf.

Tony had the misfortune to be hi-jacked on his way home from Ibiza. His plane was unavoidably taken to Gatwick airport instead of Heathrow.

I am sure many people when watching Adge and the Wurzels perform don't think of the long and sometimes exhausting journey's that the boys sometimes have to make to reach their fans. On Friday 30th October the boys left Bristol in the 'Wurzel Waggon' on their way to the Park Hall Ballroom in Wormelow. They reached the Severn Bridge, and suspecting trouble from the dynamo turned round, and collected Reg's and Tom's cars. This time there were no incidents, but because of the delay the boys arrived with little time to spare before their performance.

I was also told an amusing story about one of their appearances which probably at the time was not so funny. It happened a couple of years ago, before Tony joined the Wurzels. The boys were once again travelling to their date in the 'Wurzel Waggon', the only problem being they did n't know where they were appearing. They made enquiries at two pubs in the district with no success. At the third pub they left Reg and Henry behind hoping they might meet someone who knew the answer to their problem. After visiting two more pubs and a desperate telephone call to their manager, they arrived at the Toll House, in Stratford. Adge and Tom were having a drink, when one of the waitresses came forward to talk to them. During the conversation she told them that her parents were going to see Adge and the Wurzels that night, so at last they found out where they were appearing. It turned out to be the Alcester Trades and Labour Club. If you saw the boys that night you'll realise how lucky you were.
