FOREWORD

HORTON FARM,
HORTON.

By the President of the Carnival

As President of the Yate Carnival I, together with the people of Yate, look forward to another eventful day. Last year after a break of one year the Carnival was extremely successful, and this was achieved by a very hard working chairman and committee, with enormous assistance from the Gloucester Gazette and local organisations and, of course, with your support.

Again this year the Carnival will be running all week with many pre-Carnival attractions such as, a Dog Show, Fashion Show and a Dance on 15th June when our 'Queen' will be selected.

The committee have again shown great effort in organising this main town event and I do hope you will come along and support them both on July 15th and at all the preceding events.

I know that the committee are delighted with the promise of help from the "Gazette", Metropolitan Estates and Property Corporation, the Yate Traders Association and many other local traders, which will help in making the Carnival a very enjoyable and successful occasion for all.

County Councillor H. M. ISAAC, J.P.

ADGE CUTLER AND THE WURZELS

(Scrumpy and Western)

Adge (whose first names are really Alan John) was born in the village of Portishead, Somerset, but was brought up a few miles away, in Nailsea. He left school at 14 and his first job was as a market gardener. He then went into his father's bicycle shop before starting his National Service.

After coming out of the Forces, Adge had a number of jobs, including civil engineering, working at a cider works and at a North Wales nuclear power station, before joining Acker Bilk in 1960 as his road manager. He had known the bandleader for several years and often used to drive him and the other musicians to clubs in the area.

"I gave my first public performance when I was about seven at the Village Institute, Nailsea. I sang 'There will always be a Nailsea'. Being a regular Saturday night drinker I later noticed that it was usually songs about London or Glasgow that were being sung in the bars and that there was nothing local to sing. I thought a good roaring pub song, that's what they want. So I wrote 'Drink up thy zider' about 10 years ago and the song just spread.

"Then I started writing songs about different villages and they sort of passed into local history. I even travelled to Liverpool and sang at the Cavern Club for a couple of quid. That was the first time I ever sang professionally."

Appearances in the TWW television series "The Cider Apple" led to Adge's fame spreading and he formed "The Wurzels" to accompany him to clubs and theatres. They comprise Reg Quantrell (who plays guitar), Johnny Macey (bass), Reg Chant (accordion) and Brian Walker (tuba). The dictionary definition of a mangel-wurzel is a kind of beet used as cattle food.
